This fiscal year, running from July 1, 2013, to June 30, 2014, was eventful, exciting, and inspiring in many ways. Deaccessioning Bernard Smol, an exhibition of five works from our permanent collection organized by Lynn Boland, served as a way to educate our audiences about the process of removing works from a museum collection and resulted in enthusiastic and thoughtful participation by visitors, who voted with red and green stickers whether they thought we should keep or sell each painting. It was a great example of the power of transparency and the importance of museum ethics.

In the fall, two internationally focused exhibitions—Exuberance of Meaning: The Art Patronage of Catherine the Great (1762–1796) and Cercle et Carré and the International Spirit of Abstract Art—both organized in house, attracted large audiences, produced new scholarly research, and provided the impetus for many programs. The latter made clear a shift in collections emphasis that we had been moving toward previously. Rather than paying exorbitant loan fees, it is often better to purchase works that then become part of the collection, enriching its resources and providing the basis of future or traveling exhibitions.

We began the fiscal year with a new University of Georgia president in Jere Morehead, a long-time supporter of the museum in his previous capacity as provost, and hosted part of his investiture ceremony in November. December brought some necessary repairs to the terrazzo tiles throughout the building, which was noisy at times, but we remained open and handed out earplugs to visitors.

In early January 2014, one bitterly cold day caused a burst pipe in a first-floor mechanical room that resulted in a flood of water. Thankfully, the vaults and galleries are on the second floor, and no art was damaged. Staff members at the museum and UGA Physical Plant reacted quickly and with no thought for their own cold feet to form barriers, divert the water, and move furniture and books. We were closed for a few days to dry out the carpet and get things back in order but returned to business as usual until February, when more winter weather required us to close for several days and interfered with travel arrangements for the seventh Henry D. Green Symposium of the Decorative Arts: “Connections: Georgia in the World.” The Green Symposium was one of four academic symposia on the calendar in FY14, along with “The Enlightened Gaze: Gender, Power and Visual Culture in Eighteenth-Century Russia” (devoted to Catherine the Great), “While Silent, They Speak: Art and Diplomacy” (a symposium for emerging scholars organized with the Association of Graduate Art Students that focused on Art Interrupted: Advancing American Art and the Politics of Cultural Diplomacy), and a one-day mini-symposium connected to Cercle et Carré and the International Spirit of Abstract Art.

Despite its popularity, we agreed to loan Elizabeth Jane Gardner’s large painting La Confidence to Bob Jones University Museum & Gallery for an extended time, but the Family Day organized to bid it a temporary goodbye was a well-attended event. On Valentine’s Day, the museum hosted an event to paint ceramic bowls for the Food Bank of Northeast Georgia’s Empty Bowl Luncheon. Students and faculty from the Lamar Dodd School of Art’s ceramics program joined staff and students to create works of art that helped those less fortunate.

In March, Inspired Georgia: 28 Works from Georgia’s State Art Collection, began its tour of nine community arts venues across the state, from Summerville to Tifton. A collaboration with Georgia Council for the Arts, the Georgia Humanities Council and the Georgia Tourism Division, the exhibition drew from the state’s holdings of visual art. The museum did not organize the exhibition but assisted by creating the small catalogue that accompanied it and providing educational programming and lectures by curator of education Carissa DiCindio or director William Underwood Eiland or director William Underwood Eiland at every venue, thanks to contributions from the President’s Venture Fund.
In May, along with the annual meeting of the Friends, the museum’s Louis T. Griffith Library held an open house, announcing that it was officially open for research by students, faculty, staff, and community members. Lucy Rowland, volunteer librarian, was honored in particular for her efforts to refine the library’s holdings and her work with the UGA Libraries to make sure everything was catalogued in GIL.

Prior to the installation of Terra Verte in the Jane and Harry Willson Sculpture Garden, several trees needed to be replaced and the water feature repaired, all of which Annelies Mondi ably managed.

Staff changes continued. Melissa Rackley, in our education department, left in July 2013, and her position was filled by Callan Steinmann in September. Sage Rogers, event coordinator, also left in July, and Michele Turner, who had served in that capacity previously for the museum, replaced her, stepping down as president of the Friends of the Georgia Museum of Art. When Sarah George, our director of membership, graduated from her degree program at UGA in May and moved to Seattle, Turner stepped into her position (effective date of hiring July 1, 2014), leaving the events position vacant temporarily. Allison Nicks joined the staff as assistant registrar for exhibitions, and Kathleen Janvier assisted in the preparators’ department as a part-time temporary employee. Mary Koon, assistant editor, left the department of communications at the beginning of September, and Lawrence Cross, security coordinator, retired October 31. Gail Bridges, long-time building manager, took over his duties. And, although she did not start work until July 1, 2014 (FY15), Sarah Kate Gillespie was hired as the curator of American art, filling a position that had been vacant more than a year.

The 2013–2014 Friends’ board of directors was officially elected at the Friends’ annual meeting on May 6, 2013. The meeting, held in the M. Smith Griffith Auditorium of the Georgia Museum of Art, included a review of events hosted by the Friends over the past year and the Presentation of the 2013 Smitty Award to Mr. Michael P. Montesani, as well as Collectors, Finance, and Membership reports from respective committee chairs. Official meetings of the 13–14 Friends’ board of directors were held on the following dates:

- September 10, 2013 (hosted by William U. Eiland)
- November 21, 2013 (held at the museum)
- February 4, 2014 (held at the Lamar Dodd School of Art)
- March 25, 2014 (hosted by David and Becky Matheny)
- May 1, 2014 (Friends’ annual meeting, held at the museum)

Friends Events

The Friends of the Museum held several successful events during FY14.

- October 11, 2013 — 90 Carlton: Fall and Le Salon

- February 24, 2014 — Home of Airee Hong Edwards and Russell Edwards
- April 5, 2014 — Bella Notte, The Collectors Auction
- April 7, 2014 — Home of Mark and Marjorie McConnell
Membership

The Friends of the Georgia Museum of Art finished FY14 with 414 members in the following categories:

21 Students
74 Senior individual
56 Senior couple
51 Individual
42 Family/couple
84 Contributing ($100)
29 Donating ($250)
18 Sustaining ($500)
39 Directors Circle ($1,000)

A complete list of members follows at the end of this report, on pages 67–71.

MUSEUM SHOP

This year was a busy and productive one for the Museum Shop. Manager Amy Miller and her staff of four student workers, along with several volunteers, manned the shop for its regular six-days-a-week schedule while also processing all our online sales and frequently opening for special groups or events outside regular museum hours. The shop extended its hours for museum events 90 Carlton, Museum Mix, and Student Night throughout the year, as well as welcoming guests of the Emerging Scholars Symposium and setting up a satellite shop at the Georgia Center for the Seventh Henry D. Green Symposium of the Decorative Arts.

In December the Shop again assisted the Publications Department in hosting the museum’s annual Holiday Book and Frame Sale. Over four days, patrons were able to purchase museum catalogues and used picture frames at greatly discounted prices. The sale culminated in a Museum Shop open house, which offered guests the chance to enjoy a hot beverage and a snack while browsing for gifts.

The Museum Shop’s online storefront continued to operate through the UGA Marketplace program. This web presence allows us to offer all museum-published catalogues for sale throughout the United States, as well as offering a limited selection of gift and logo items to our patrons.

In February, Miller traveled to New York City to attend NY NOW, the international gift expo at the Javits Center. The show provided an opportunity to view products from hundreds of vendors over several days and to network with vendors and other retail professionals while sourcing merchandise to tie in with upcoming exhibitions. Miller also took advantage of the world-class museums (and museum shops) located in the city by paying visits to the Met, MoMA, and the Guggenheim.

The shop continued to process wholesale catalogue orders on behalf of the Publications Department. These sales for the current fiscal year came in at $13,250.11.

Shop sales for this fiscal year totaled $42,367.35. These were predominantly book sales ($29,463.70), followed by jewelry and other personal accessories ($6,920.73) and children’s items ($4,860.13).
Foundations, corporations, government agencies, and individuals supported the museum’s programs through grants and gifts in FY14. The W. Newton Morris Charitable Foundation, in particular, provided support in many areas, and especially for exhibitions and acquisitions.

The Audrey Love Charitable Foundation continued its generous support, with grants for acquisitions. The museum received support from the Frances Wood Wilson Foundation and Samuel H. Kress Foundation for Exuberance of Meaning: The Art Patronage of Catherine the Great. The venerable New York dealer of Russian art, A La Vieille Russie, also supported the exhibition, as did several generous private donors.

The Ceramic Circle of Atlanta provided support for the museum’s presentation of a traveling exhibition of Newcomb pottery.

Several multi-year grant projects continued in FY14, including the Kress Project, an initiative to reinvigorate interest in the museum’s Samuel H. Kress Study Collection. “Just My Imagination,” the museum’s statewide outreach program, was funded by a grant from the Turner Family Foundation in memory of Nancy Cooper Turner.

Fashion Independent: The Original Style of Ann Bonfoey Taylor attracted sponsors from among the membership of the Friends and from The Adsmith, Global Escapes Travel, Sew Normal Studio, and Sonia Says. Sponsors’ names were featured with their choice of an outfit, a grouping of garments and accessories, or a film as part of the popular summer show.

The Georgia Humanities Council awarded a Special Program Grant to support the keynote lecture of the Seventh Henry D. Green Symposium of the Decorative Arts by Ronald Hurst of Colonial Williamsburg. The Forward Arts Foundation of Atlanta was the lead sponsor of the symposium, and its support provided a great impetus, so that the museum was able to set and meet a significantly higher fundraising goal. Twenty individuals and couples were also sponsors, as were Brunk Auction Services of Asheville, North Carolina; the children and grandchildren of Henry and Fran Green; and the International Fine Print Dealers Association. Tiger Mountain Vineyards and Epting Events provided generous in-kind support for the special events surrounding the symposium. These fundraising efforts enabled the museum to acquire the weathervane from the old Savannah Market using a portion of the net income, the remainder of which will fund the publication of the proceedings.

By June, the museum and its partners, the Jule Collins Smith Museum of Fine Art at Auburn University, and the Fred Jones Jr. Museum of Art, University of Oklahoma, were nearing the completion of Art Interrupted: Advancing American Art and the Politics of Cultural Diplomacy, which toured to Indiana University Art Museum in fall 2013 and was on view in Athens from January to April 2014. Art Interrupted has been supported by major grants from the Henry Luce Foundation and the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA). The NEA also funded the exhibition Cercle et Carré and the International Spirit of Abstract Art, which opened in October 2013.

On-campus funding for museum projects was generous in FY14. UGA Parents & Families Association continued its support of the Georgia Museum of Art Student Association and Thursday Evening Films. The museum received a State-of-the-Art Conference Grant from the Office of the Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost for “The Enlightened Gaze: Gender, Power, and Visual Culture in Eighteenth-Century Russia,” an international symposium co-sponsored by the museum and the Lamar Dodd School of Art. The provost’s grant will also support a portion of the cost to publish the proceedings. The President’s Venture Fund supported receptions and dinners surrounding the symposium.

The President’s Venture Fund also supported the collaboration among the museum and the Georgia Council for the Arts, Georgia Humanities Council, and the Georgia Tourism Division on Inspired Georgia: 28 Works from Georgia’s State Art Collection, a selection of works in various formats that is touring smaller communities throughout the state. The museum is assisting with educational programming, and has scheduled Just My Imagination programs in many of the towns that host Inspired Georgia. The director and curators are speaking at each of the venues where the exhibition, which closes in December 2014, has been or will be shown. The President’s Venture Fund is covering the travel expenses of the staff for this project.

Individuals remain the museum’s most important source of support. Hundreds of annual financial gifts, large and small, enable the museum to maintain its level of excellence and serve a broad public.

DESIGN AND PREPARATION

This year the design and preparation department worked to install both exhibitions and several site-specific installations. Members of the department work with curators and registrars to ensure the safety of the works in our collection through rotating works on paper on display within the permanent collection and packing works of art for shipments. The staff continues to serve the museum as short-distance couriers for art pick-ups and deliveries, making trips throughout Georgia and the Southeast. The department has provided printed signage to promote events and visitation at the museum.

In October, the department was able to hire a 10-month appointed part-time preparator, Kathleen Janvier. The department continues to work with volunteer interns from the Lamar Dodd School of Art.

In FY14, the department worked to upgrade the security of the museum’s case inventory by adding alarms to every case. The department also partnered with the art school on the use of a laser to cut and simplify the manufacture of Plexiglas mounts for the medals and coins in the exhibition The Material of Culture: Renaissance Medals and Textiles from the Ulrich A. Middeldorf Collection. Todd Rivers successfully passed the LEED Green Associates exam administered by the U.S. Green Building Council.
COMMUNICATIONS

This fiscal year, the museum added underwriting of programming at WUGA (the local NPR station) as a method of promotion, which has been very successful. It continued to produce and distribute wallet-size Family Day cards in Spanish and English with the education staff. These cards went home with all Athens-Clarke County School District students, K–5, three times during the course of the year: early August, at the beginning of the school year; January, upon classes resuming; and May, before classes let out for the summer. The cards also went to day cares, private schools in the area (Athens Academy, Prince Avenue Baptist, Athens Christian, etc.) and other interested parties (Athens Farmers Market, Treehouse Kid and Craft, others). This year, the museum printed enough to distribute them to Barrow, Jackson, Morgan, and Oconee County primary schools as well. A rack card to promote Teen Studio was printed and distributed to the two main public high schools in the county. The trifold brochure aimed at tourists was redesigned and reprinted in July 2013.

The museum distributed 47 press releases through UGA’s News Service program, as well as several on its own. These releases garnered 350 mentions, with a total ad value of $176,104.31. Other media coverage was gained through an emphasis on pitching and included mentions in Southern Living, the New York Times, the Huffington Post, Drawing magazine, the Atlanta Journal-Constitution, Atlanta magazine, Georgia Trend, Southern Seasons, and Humanities magazine as well as a radio feature on Voice of Russia (on the Cercle et Carré exhibition) and an hour-long TV feature on Exuberance of Meaning that aired repeatedly on WUGA-TV. The museum successfully pitched Catherine the Great as a year-long emphasis for a prominent Athens-area study club and worked with the Georgia Department of Economic Development to create panoramic video footage (with narration) of one of the museum’s galleries for the statewide tourism website, ExploreGeorgia.org.

The department continued to provide graphic design of posters, invitations, educational materials (gallery guides, flyers, teaching packets), materials for the Board of Advisors, grant packet materials, and more. It invested in three high-quality pop-up banners, one for the Museum Shop and two generally promoting the museum, which have helped raise the museum’s profile while tabling at events (such as at a Gym Dogs meet at the UGA Coliseum). Communications staff manned a table at the 2013 Decatur Book Festival, retailing some books but, more important, making contact with thousands of potential visitors in Atlanta over the course of two days. The museum also purchased tabling space at 2013’s Southeastern Museums Conference Annual Meeting Expo, as the meeting was held in Savannah, and it seemed important to reiterate our status as the official art museum of the state.

Museum Mix, the museum’s late-night art party, completed its second year as an event, with events held August 22, November 14, and a record-breaking collaboration with Athens Fashion Collective on April 3 that filled the sculpture garden and resulted in an evening attendance total of more than 800 guests.

EXHIBITIONS

Deaccessioning Bernard Smol

May 25–July 7, 2013
Martha Thompson Dinos Gallery

This exhibition featured five paintings by the French artist Bernard Smol (1897–1969) that were in the museum’s collection. Due to limited storage space and evolving collecting philosophy, the museum staff decided to “deaccession,” or remove from its collection, all but one of the works. Visitors were able to vote on which one they would like the museum to keep, and the curatorial staff planned to take those votes into consideration. All five works are oil paintings on canvas of comparable dimensions, styles, and significance, making it difficult to decide which one to keep except for a difference in their exhibition histories and the ways in which they entered the collection.

Deaccessioning is a lengthy and complex process. First, the museum must give public notice of its intent. The museum’s collections committee and Board of Advisors and UGA’s president must all approve that intent. Only then can the work be removed from the collection, often to be sold at public auction, to keep the process as transparent as possible. Proceeds, if the works is sold, must be used for acquisitions, to prevent monetizing the collection. Violation of appropriate deaccessioning procedure can lead to sanctions by such professional organizations as the Association of Art Museum Directors (AAMD), of which the museum is a member. Sanctions can mean the loss of the ability to borrow works from other museums or even the loss of accreditation by the American Alliance of Museums. The museum’s director, William Underwood Eiland, has served on AAMD’s Deaccessioning Task Force and is an expert in the field.

Face Jugs: Art and Ritual in 19th-Century South Carolina

May 4–July 7, 2013
Dorothy Alexander Roush Gallery

Decorative arts historians coined the term “face jug” to refer to a pottery type created by the African American enslaved community in the Edgefield district of South Carolina. The small vessel is turned stoneware with facial features—wide eyes and bared teeth—made of kaolin, a locally sourced clay. Historians originally believed that the face jug was utilitarian and used to store water. Multiple theories later surfaced involving its function as a container of magical materials and its ritualistic use. New research has shown that the vessel was likely multipurpose—and a coded object meant to be misunderstood. White potters appropriated the face jug design around 1880. They mainly discontinued the use of kaolin, a sacred material in West Africa, and produced the objects mostly as whimsies. The face jug thus lost the symbolic power of its original form. This exhibition, organized by Claudia Mooney, assistant curator at the Chipstone Foundation, and the Milwaukee Art Museum, celebrated the formative African American vessels and their aesthetic power while discussing their cultural meanings within a community of Americans that lived under challenging circumstances. Faces that have long stood silent here regained a voice.

Pick of the Kiln: The Work of Michael Simon

July 20–September 8, 2013
Dorothy Alexander Roush and Martha Thompson Dinos Galleries

This exhibition featured ceramic works revealing the progression of Athens artist Michael Simon’s work over the course of his career. The objects are Simon’s “pick of the kiln”: the pieces he chose to keep after every kiln firing. Simon began selecting these items later in his career after sending previous work to exhibitions, shops and fairs for almost a decade without keeping any. He chose one object from each firing to track how his work developed over time. The exhibition included dozens of objects, some that simply appealed to Simon and others because they represented a desired form. Simon’s body of work features mostly functional objects. His interest in pottery originates from the role that pots play within the household, serving a utilitarian purpose such as food preparation, serving and storage.

Fashion Independent: The Original Style of Ann Bonfoey Taylor

June 1–September 15, 2013

Ann Bonfoey Taylor (1910–2007) created a life that personifies what an American woman can be—Olympic skier, championship tennis player, licensed pilot, successful skiwear designer, skilled sportswoman—but above all, she was a style icon. This exhibition, organized by Dennita Sewell, curator of fashion design at Phoenix Art Museum, showcased the custom-made wardrobe of day and evening wear that Taylor assembled from the post–World War II era through the 1970s. It included approximately two hundred pieces designed by some of the most accomplished couturiers of the twentieth century, including Mariano Fortuny, Charles James, James Galanos, Cristóbal Balenciaga, Hubert de Givenchy, and Madame Grès. The collection, selected by Art and Antiques magazine as one of the top 100 museum gifts of 2008, also includes Taylor’s own skiwear designs and sportswear as well as accessories by Hermés, Louis Vuitton, Gucci, and Henry Maxwell.

Recent Acquisitions

July 13–October 13, 2013
Boone and George-Ann Knox Gallery II

This exhibition highlighted some works that had recently entered the collection, including gifts from Amalia Amaki, Gordon W. Bailey, Phillip and Juanita Greenspan, George-Ann Knox, and Larry and Brenda Thompson. Artists featured included Casper Banjo, Chuck Close, Philip Guston, Winslow Homer, Clare Leighton, O. L. Samuels, and Hale Woodruff.

Exuberance of Meaning: The Art Patronage of Catherine the Great (1762–1796)

September 21, 2013–January 5, 2014

Dorothy Alexander Roush, Martha Thompson Dinos, and Martha and Eugene Odum Galleries

Exuberance of Meaning featured many works of art and books, most of which Catherine the Great commissioned for her own use or for the courtiers who received them as gifts. Other objects in the exhibition served as examples of historic precedents for the empress’s choices or represent major currents in the history of Russian art of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The exhibition presented a comparison of dazzling and masterful objects that exemplify both medieval Byzantine culture, of which Russia was the successor and guardian, and the Western, neoclassical style that was the hallmark of the Enlightenment. The exhibition and publications contributed to the current knowledge of patronage in eighteenth-century Russia and to an understanding of the role of Byzantine culture in Russia’s history up to the era of neoclassicism.

October 12, 2013–January 5, 2014

Virginia and Alfred Kennedy and Philip Henry Alston Jr. Galleries

This exhibition was the first major one devoted to the art and activities of Cercle et Carré (Circle and Square), the artistic group cofounded in 1929 by Pierre Daura (1896–1976), Joaquín Torres-García (1874–1949), and Michel Seuphor (1901–1999). Organized primarily around the works displayed in the group’s 1930 exhibition in Paris or featured in one of the three issues of the 1930 Cercle et Carré periodical, the exhibition presented a dynamic assembly of abstract works of art not seen as a group and seldom discussed in relation to one another for more than 80 years. Complementing the primary-source materials in the Georgia Museum of Art’s Pierre Daura Center’s archives, this exhibition made

The Crossroads of Memory: Carroll Cloar and the American South

October 5, 2013–January 5, 2014

Boone and George-Ann Knox Gallery I, Rachel Cosby Conway, Alfred Heber Holbrook, Charles B. Presley Family, and Lamar Dodd Galleries

Organized by the Memphis Brooks Museum of Art and the Arkansas Arts Center, this exhibition featured works by Carroll Cloar from major public collections as well as rarely seen pictures still in private hands. Cloar’s complex style not only pays homage to the great American realist masters and the pointillism of the Post-Impressionists, but also blends these elements smoothly with the subtly disturbing images and themes of the Surrealists. His paintings, with their saturated colors, repeating patterns and shallow picture planes, offer a unique and timeless vision of the American South. Marking the centenary of the artist’s birth, the exhibition included approximately 70 paintings, ranging from early realist works to the poignant pictures of his later career.

L’objet en mouvement: Early Abstract Film

October 12, 2013–January 5, 2014
Alonzo and Vallye Dudley Gallery

Presented in conjunction with Cercle et Carré and the International Spirit of Abstract Art, this exhibition comprised a selection of abstract films from the 1920s discussed by essayists in the third issue of Cercle et Carré’s journal. Members of Cercle et Carré identified these early films as initial steps toward achieving an entirely abstract cinema—a nonrepresentational mode of expression based purely on movement. Films included Fernand Léger’s “Le Ballet mécanique” (1924) and Man Ray’s “Emak-Bakia” (1926).

The Material of Culture: Renaissance Medals and Textiles from the Ulrich A. Middendorf Collection

October 26, 2013–January 12, 2014
Boone and George-Ann Knox Gallery II

This exhibition presented an overview of Ulrich A. Middendorf’s career as an art historian, teacher, and curator. It featured selected medals and textiles from his collection, on loan from the Indiana University Art Museum. Contextual material provided insight into how these luxury artifacts were utilized in the Renaissance and the various ways in which they convey the desire for personal recognition, taste for public display and a sense of general pride and enjoyment so prevalent in sixteenth-century Italian urban society.

It’s Not Polite to Stare

January 7–March 16, 2014
Alonzo and Vallye Dudley Gallery

The nature of film and video as a medium often compels artists to focus on the idea of seeing and being seen. In this exhibition, Charles Atlas, VALIE EXPORT, and Shelly Silver all addressed the “rules of looking” and how they are affected by gender roles. All three videos take place in a public space, which leads the viewer to question the existence of privacy in the public realm. Is it acceptable or even expected to stare simply because the environment is no longer explicitly private? Each artist takes a humorous approach to these issues in a range of scenarios: a woman allowing the public to touch her chest through a mini curtained theater constructed on her torso; a man dressed in an outlandish “Mrs. Peanut” costume strutting down the street in Lucite heels; and a woman stalking men through the streets of Paris as they try to evade her.

The Silent Cities of Peru: Archaeological Photographs by Fernando La Rosa

January 25–March 30, 2014
Virginia and Alfred Kennedy Gallery

Fernando La Rosa brings a deep array of perspectives to his portraits of the awesome stones and vistas of the Silent Cities of his native Peru. He has visited these sites over many years, during which time his photography has been grounded in a rigorous questioning of the image. This questioning advances the tradition of archeological photography into one of ontology. Rosa’s long relationship with the sites of Chavin Huantar, Sechin, and Machu Picchu has allowed him access no longer available to the casual visitor. As a result of overnight stays, he records elemental events such as the arrival of the sun into interior sacred spaces. La Rosa captures the mystery of these amazing, massive stones, which inspire a sense of disbelief at the skills and labor that brought these cities into being.

Art Interrupted: Advancing American Art and the Politics of Cultural Diplomacy

January 25–April 20, 2014
Boone and George-Ann Knox Gallery

I, Rachel Cosby Conway, Alfred Heber Holbrook, Charles B. Presley Family, and Lamar Dodd Galleries

In 1946, amid a “Cold War” conflict that emerged between the United States and the Soviet Union after World War II, the Department of State embarked on an innovative program of cultural diplomacy. At the heart of this initiative was a project known as Advancing American Art. The program called for the acquisition of modernist paintings by contemporary American artists with the intention of traveling the art through the Latin American republics, Eastern Europe, and Asia. Its objective was to exemplify the freedom of expression enjoyed by artists in a democracy while demonstrating America’s artistic coming of age.

Within months after Advancing American Art began its exhibition tours, controversy over the program erupted in the American media, government forums and public discourse. Many observers lambasted the paintings selected for the project, and the artists themselves, as un-American and subversive. Several of the artists had left-leaning political views and the collection, by design, largely avoided representational styles. Facing intense disapproval by Congress with the prospect of losing all funding for its cultural programs abroad, the State Department chose to recall the exhibitions and the paintings were soon sold at auction.
Art Interrupted: Advancing American Art and the Politics of Cultural Diplomacy examined the development and swift demise of this ambitious but ill-fated instrument of foreign policy. The story of Advancing American Art offers important clues to a better understanding of the unsettled period in American history immediately following World War II. The public debate the project engendered—on the value of modern art, government’s role in art patronage and what constitutes a truly American art form—addressed issues that are still worthy of discussion today. The curtailed tour in 1947 prevented a full consideration of what the paintings had to say about the artists and the period in which they were created.

Nearly seventy years after the paintings were first assembled, the organizers of this exhibition (the Jule Collins Smith Museum of Fine Art at Auburn University, the Fred Jones Jr. Museum of Art at the University of Oklahoma and the Georgia Museum of Art at the University of Georgia) worked together to give the artists and the original State Department organizers their due acknowledgment. From a checklist of 117 oils and watercolors sold as war surplus in 1948, “Art Interrupted” reunited all but ten paintings, for which there are no known locations, in an exhibition that demonstrated again the great worth in freedom and diversity.

Rugs of the Caucasus

January 30–April 27, 2014
Boone and George-Ann Knox Gallery II

This exhibition included several dated examples of Caucasian rugs from 1805 to the early twentieth century. A selection of about a dozen examples taken from an advanced private collection provided the opportunity to discuss the evolution of design as well as the indigenous use and wear patterns in contrast to the use and wear patterns of Western importation. Caucasian rugs were regularly imported into the United States, including Georgia, throughout the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

Quayola: “Strata #4”

March 20–June 15, 2014
Alonzo and Vallye Dudley Gallery

Quayola is a visual artist based in London who works in photography, geometry, time-based digital sculptures, and immersive audiovisual installations and performances. Strata #4 is a multichannel immersive video installation commissioned by the Palais de Beaux Arts in Lille. The subject of this work is a series of iconic pieces from that museum’s Flemish collection, focusing specifically on Rubens’s and Van Dyck’s grand altarpieces. The video installation results from a study of the paintings, delving beneath their appearance and looking at the rules that govern the composition, color schemes and proportions of each work, examining the collisions between classical figuration and contemporary abstraction.

Quayola’s work has been exhibited at the Venice Biennale; Victoria & Albert Museum, London; British Film Institute, London; Park Ave Armory, New York; La Gaite Lyrique, Paris; MNAC, Barcelona; and Grand Theatre, Bordeaux, among many other major venues. Strata #4 opened in conjunction with Slingshot Festival of music, electronic art and technology, taking place in Athens March 19–22.

Tristan Perich: “Machine Wall Drawing”

March 20–November 18, 2014
Patsy Dudley Pate Balcony

Tristan Perich is a contemporary artist and composer based in New York City who recently had work included in the exhibition Soundings at the Museum of Modern Art. WIRE Magazine describes his musical compositions as “an austere meeting of electronic and organic.” Machine Drawing occupies a 60-foot wall on the museum’s Patsy Dudley Pate Balcony and has been creating itself over the course of its six-month installation. Perich creates code that operates the machine, but the interaction of the digital and physical elements make the work unique, introducing randomness into a tightly controlled order. Machine Drawing opened in conjunction with Slingshot Festival of music, electronic art and technology, taking place in Athens March 19–22.

Women, Art, and Social Change: The Newcomb Pottery Enterprise

May 17–August 31, 2014
Boone and George-Ann Knox Gallery
I, Rachel Cosby Conway, Alfred Heber Holbrook, Charles B. Presley Family, and Lamar Dodd Galleries

Organized by the Newcomb Art Gallery and the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service, Women, Art, and Social Change: The Newcomb Pottery Enterprise is the largest presentation of Newcomb arts and crafts in more than twenty-five years. Works from various periods examine the role that the enterprise played in promoting art for the betterment of women, and in turn, New Orleans’ business and cultural communities, still struggling from the effects of the Civil War. The exhibition featured significant examples of the iconic pottery, including a daffodil motif vase by Harriet Joor, as well as lesser known textiles, metalwork, jewelry, bookbinding, and historical artifacts. The exhibition offers new insights into the Newcomb community—the philosophy, the friendships, the craftsmanship, and the women who made an enduring mark on American art and industry.

Produced by one of the most significant American art potteries of the twentieth century, Newcomb works are a graceful union of form and decoration inspired by the flora and fauna of the Gulf South. Each piece is one of a kind—and collectively they create a distinctive southern art form. In 1895, the H. Sophie Newcomb Memorial College, Tulane University’s women’s coordinate college, established the Newcomb Pottery in New Orleans, and conceived it as part artist collective, part social experiment and part business enterprise initiative under the auspices of an educational program. The art school faculty incorporated the philosophies and tenets of the English Arts and Crafts movement into their curriculum to teach southern women self-reliance by way of an education and gain financial independence through the sale of their wares. The Pottery thrived until 1940.

Today these remarkable, distinctive art objects continue to be critically acclaimed and highly sought-after, and the Newcomb program is a rich mine for academic research. Women, Art, and Social Change: The Newcomb Pottery Enterprise showcased a striking collection of Newcomb pottery, metalwork, bookbinding, and textiles with text that draws from new scholarship to explore the history of the Pottery and its importance as a social and artistic experiment.

The Lithographs of Carroll Cloar

May 17–August 10, 2014
Boone and George-Ann Knox Gallery II

Although formally trained in New York, Carroll Cloar (1913–1993) spent most of his career in Memphis, Tennessee, creating works of art based on his memories of his childhood in Earle, Arkansas. In addition to the hundreds of paintings and drawings Cloar created, he made lithographs in the 1930s and 1940s, all printed in editions of twenty-five. Borrowing from a private collection and the University of Memphis, this exhibition brings together each of these thirty-one prints in a single gallery. These lithographs, like Cloar’s paintings, have a surrealist tone through subjects based on stories of people and places from Cloar’s childhood, biblical narratives, and popular culture. Unlike his colorful paintings and linear drawings, the prints’ strong contrast of black and white forms and painterly lines create a hauntingly different atmosphere.

Shapes That Talk to Me: The Athens Scene, 1975–85

May 24–October 19, 2014
Permanent Collection Galleries

As part of Art Rocks Athens, the museum joined the UGA Special Collections Library, the Lamar Dodd School of Art, the Lyndon House Arts Center, Ciné, and others in celebrating the Athens art and music scene of the 1970s and 1980s. Paintings from the museum’s permanent collection already on view were reinterpreted and augmented with other works, highlighting... some of the artists who helped shape the vibrant local culture and mark Athens’s international significance.

Jane and Harry Willson Sculpture Garden

Scottish artist Patricia Leighton has been making art in the public realm for more than twenty-five years, creating large-scale permanent commissions that relate to the history of a given site and relevant environmental and ecological conditions. She views the integration of art and site as a collaborative process and works in tandem with a diverse creative team of professionals from fields such as ecology, engineering, architecture and landscape architecture. Leighton’s installation in the museum’s sculpture garden consists of six “growing cubes,” elevated frameworks of steel filled with living vegetation, sited throughout the three tiers of the space. She said, “Having grown up surrounded by Scottish hills and mountains of ever-changing color, texture and light; having traveled Britain and Europe viewing ancient sacred sites like the Ring of Brogar in Orkney or Hagar Qim in Malta, I have experienced first-hand a sense of timelessness and hidden mysteries. I seek to capture this sense of presence in my work and the intrinsic echoes of the landscape.” Leighton has created work in Scotland; England; Wales; South Korea; Bulgaria; and, in the United States, in New York City; Charlotte, North Carolina; and Roosville, Montana.

Picturing America: Signature Works from the Westmoreland Museum of American Art

June 14–August 24, 2014

Virginia and Alfred Kennedy and Philip Henry Alston Jr. Galleries

Fifty-seven works from the Westmoreland’s permanent collection make up this exhibition that spans two hundred years of American art, from colonial times to the mid-twentieth century, as the United States came into its own as the cultural capital of the world. Seen through the subject areas of portraiture, still-life, landscape, and narrative painting, the artists represented in this exhibition serve as a survey of American art. The exhibition features oil and tempera paintings and bronze sculptures by artists ranging from Charles Willson Peale to Mary Cassatt to Robert Henri to Harriet Frishmuth. The exhibition is organized and toured by the Westmoreland Museum of American Art, Greensburg, PA.

Bernd Oppl: Inhabited Interiors

June 21–September 16, 2014
Alonzo and Vallye Dudley Gallery

Bernd Oppl is a video and installation artist living and working in Vienna, Austria. Oppl makes architectural models inspired by the films of Alfred Hitchcock and other horror-genre legends, then introduces an unpredictable substance (for instance, ice or gelatinous goo) and films the effects taking place within those spaces. The resulting videos capture strange occurrences within mysterious interiors that seem to defy the laws of physics. The spaces themselves, lacking human figures, act as protagonists. Oppl aims to create visual experiences that would not be possible without video cameras. He also seeks to introduce an element of chaos and chance (the substance) and relinquish some control over his painstaking, exact miniatures.

The exhibition comprises three videos—a hotel room icing over, a home inhabited by a strange shadow or dust cloud, and a hallway with a gelatinous substance dripping from floor to ceiling.

EDUCATION

The education department served the university, the community, and Georgia with diverse academic, public, and K–12 programs in FY14. The department relied heavily on the valuable assistance of community and student docents, graduate students, student interns, artists, specialists, and volunteers. Carissa DiCindio, curator of education, focused on public and academic programming, and Callan Steinmann, associate curator of education, who began in September 2013, concentrated on K–12 and community programs. Melissa Rackley left the position of associate curator of education in July 2013. Amy Smoler worked as a temporary part-time education assistant until November 2013, and Sarah Quinn took over this role from March to August 2014.

The department continued to build partnerships on campus and in the community. More university classes are using the museum each year for tours, research, and programs, and student demand for internships and opportunities continues to increase. Fifth-grade tours became part of a larger university program, Experience UGA, and serve as a model for other field trips on campus. These visits now include a trip to the Hugh Hodgson School of Music where students sit in on rehearsals or visit the Performing Arts Center. Select descriptions of programs, partnerships, and attendance are listed following this summary.

Educational Programs

Adopt-a-Bus

Donations provide funding for students in schools outside Clarke County and the fifth-grade tour program. In fact, this program began due to the popularity of the fifth-grade tour program and a need for field trips. This past year, we did not receive funding in time for schools to schedule tours, but we have funding available for the next school year.

Art Adventures

Through Art Adventures, 421 children from community centers and day camps in Clarke and surrounding counties participated in our summer program. Programs are scheduled in the mornings and afternoons and take place at the Georgia Museum of Art. Each session included an introduction about the museum and an art activity. This year’s theme was “Museum Mysteries” and highlighted works in the permanent collection.

This program will be featured in a special exhibition organized by the Association of Art Museum Directors at the Department of Education in Washington, D.C., in July 2014. Art Adventures takes place over two fiscal years, and planning and scheduling begins early. The details and numbers for mid-June and July 2014 will be reported next year.

Children and Family Events

Family Days serve diverse and international audiences. Under the direction of Steinmann and through new promotional cards, attendance continues to rise, and new families are visiting the museum. Volunteers for Family Days included interns and other students from the university. All Family Days are sponsored by Heyward Allen Motor Co., Heyward Allen Toyota, YellowBook USA, and the Friends of the Georgia Museum of Art. Teen Studio reaches a demographic that we would like to see more of at the museum. Gallery Games are designed to create interactive experiences in the galleries of the museum for children ages 7 to 11.

Community Docent Education

By leading tours for visitors each year, community docents play an integral role in carrying out the museum’s educational mission. Docents undergo in-depth training in interactive teaching techniques and spend many hours studying and preparing to give tours to groups of all ages. Community docents sign up for a commitment of two years, although many have been docents for much longer. Officers for this year were Julia Sanks, president; Jean Petrovs, vice-president; Susan Glover, secretary/treasurer; and Melody Croft served as mentor for new docents. Docents served on gallery duty this year in order to talk about the museum to visitors, welcome them, and give informal tours. The docent book study group met throughout the year. A roster of docents and a syllabus of the program are included in this report.

Film Series

Films were sponsored by the UGA Parents and Families Association. Film series included Fashion, Catherine the Great, Art Interrupted, and Crimes Against Culture: Art and the Nazis. We also partnered with the Department of Romance Languages for a special two-night event, España en Corto (Spanish Short Films).

Volunteer Intern Program

The education department is responsible for student interns and orientation programs each semester. DiCindio coordinated the program and worked with university students. Interns for the education department were: Daniel Britt, Samantha King, Victoria Eudy, Kaitlyn Ritz, Allie Beck, Stephanie Romero, Charlotte Maier, and Hannah Leathers. Interns worked on special projects related to their studies as well as assisted with departmental office work, Family Days, and special events. Eva Berlin, president of the Georgia Museum of Art Student Association, received the Louis T. Griffith Student of the Year Award at the annual reception held in Mr. Griffith’s honor that recognizes all interns and Federal Work-Study students.

Just My Imagination

This program serves people throughout the state of Georgia, and workshops are available for all ages. Artists travel to libraries and community centers for programs, and sometimes JMI provides the only exposure to an organized program on art for many of the attendees. This program is sponsored by the Turner Family Foundation in memory of Nancy C. Turner. Toni Carlucci taught the workshops “Furry, Fluffy Felt Fun” and “Drawing from Nature” and Jackie Slayton Methe taught “Watercolors from Apples to Zebras” and “Printmaking and Ink Painting.” Toni Carlucci also piloted a new workshop called “Wild and Wacky Animals.” Twenty-two workshops reached 556 people throughout Georgia.

Lectures and Gallery Talks

The museum hosted a wide variety of lectures and gallery talks, including Patty Bladon, Louis Menand, Priscilla Roosevelt, and U.S. ambassador Cynthia Schneider. These talks contextualized special exhibitions and topics related to the permanent collection.

Lunch and Learn Programs

Lunch and Learn programs featured curators introducing aspects of the museum’s collection to university faculty to inspire connections to their curricula. Lunch and Learn topics were as follows: Circa 1930: Europe Between the Wars, The Culture of the Cold War and Atomic Age, and Women and the Decorative Arts.

School Programs

Fifth-grade classes in the Clarke County school district visited the museum and then went on to a program at the Hugh Hodgson School of Music. Mr. and Mrs. B. Heyward Allen Jr. provided funding for transportation for the elementary schools in Athens. An Evening for Educators reception kicked off these tours and featured teaching packets for school tours that incorporated instructional material for teachers, performance learning standards and curriculum guides for Georgia, and activities for each grade K–5.

Student Docents

Eight student docents completed the UGA course “Engaging Art Museum Audiences as Student Docents,” taught by DiCindio, and these undergraduate and graduate students gave tours to a variety of age groups. This year, the course included a service-learning component in which students developed a program for Clarke County Council on Aging’s Grandparents Raising Grandchildren program, in conjunction with the exhibition The Crossroads of Memory: Carroll Cloar and the American South. Education sessions for this group included speakers such as Carole Henry, UGA professor of art education, and curators. The focus of the education sessions was on dialogue with works of art and helping visitors use their own experiences to create connections with works. Student docents were instrumental to giving tours to audiences of all ages. They provided tours to their peers, led fifth-grade tours, and helped the education department with hands-on activities during the Georgia Museum of Art Student Association’s “Student Nights.” A syllabus of the program is included in this report.

Suitcase Tours

Docents visited local elementary schools and presented “Mr. Holbrook’s Suitcase Tour” for grades K–3. This year, 10 Suitcase Tours reached 189 children. The suitcase tour will be updated in FY15 to reflect current teaching practices better.

Educational Materials

The education department produced new publications to reach the needs of museum audiences, including gallery guides written for children at Family Days. Backpack tours have been used by many families in the galleries. The Georgia History Trunk that relates works from the museum’s collection to Georgia history is at community centers and school support centers throughout Georgia and available in our Louis T. Griffith Teacher Resource Center. Through the support of the Turner Family Foundation in memory of Nancy C. Turner, our interactive classroom is up and running; it is getting a lot of use during Gallery Games and special tours. A new teaching packet was developed, which highlights selected works from the museum’s permanent collection and includes background information, discussion questions, and lesson plans for a variety of disciplines for grades K–12. This packet was distributed to teachers in Clarke and surrounding counties and is available for download on the museum’s website.

Partnerships

We valued our partnerships with organizations at UGA and in the community, including the Fanning Institute, the Lamar Dodd School of Art, the department of Romance Languages, the Institute for Women’s Studies, UGA Special Collections Libraries, and the State Botanical Garden of Georgia, and we strive to continue these partnerships in the future. Fanning Institute’s immigrant leadership program, Leadership Sin Limites, visited the museum for a tour and activity that focused on using symbols to represent larger ideas. Dr. Judith Ortiz Cofer’s advanced creative writing class wrote poetry and prose inspired by works in the museum’s collection again and held a reading and reception at the museum. Dr. Cofer retired this year, but we plan to continue the program with another professor in the department of English.

Students at the University of Georgia are involved in almost all of our programs. In addition to serving the museum as student docents, interns, and volunteers, students attend lectures, films, discussions, and other programs. Many tours are scheduled by university classes, and the education department works with professors and museum staff to develop programming in the galleries and the Shannon Candler Collection Study Room that fit the topics and goals of the class. This year, xxxx tours for UGA classes were conducted at the Georgia Museum of Art by staff and docents, serving xxxx students.

In FY14, 16,098 people attended 479 programs and tours sponsored or assisted by the museum’s education department.
Selected Accomplishments

In FY14, DiCindio taught ARED 5230/7230, “Engaging Art Museum Audiences as Student Docents,” fall semester, department of art education, UGA; served on the thesis committees of four candidates in the master’s of art education program, UGA; served as advisor to the museum’s Student Association and as intern coordinator for the museum; and received a Service-Learning Fellowship through the Office of Service-Learning. She spoke to university and community groups about educational programs and gave numerous lectures and tours in the galleries to university classes.

Fall 2013

Dr. Carissa DiCindio, Curator of Education
Rm. 346, Georgia Museum of Art
Office Hours: By appointment
cdicindl@uga.edu or 706.583.0111

Course Description
This course will focus on how museum audiences interact with works of art and how docents can facilitate these experiences. It will include readings, discussions, and activities in the galleries of the Georgia Museum of Art. Students will learn about the museum’s collection and give tours as student docents. As a service-learning component, students will design programming and materials in conjunction with the exhibition The Crossroads of Memory: Carroll Cloar and the American South for a special event with Athens Community Council on Aging’s Grandparents Raising Grandchildren program.

Course Requirements

Shadowed Tour Reflection
Each student will go on a docent-led tour at a museum or gallery of their choice and post a reflection about it on eLC New. This tour can be at GMOA or any other museum or gallery, such as Georgia Museum of Natural History, Special Collections Library, ATHICA, and the State Botanical Garden of Georgia. Due September 19.

10-minute dialogue
Each student will lead a 10-minute dialogue on one work of art from GMOA’s permanent collection scheduled on September 24.

Grandparents Raising Grandchildren Programming and Materials
Students will work together to design an interactive tour for Athens Community Council on Aging’s Grandparents Raising Grandchildren program that promotes dialogue using memory and stories in conjunction with the exhibition The Crossroads of Memory: Carroll Cloar and the American South. They will also create a hands-on activity in the classroom in conjunction with this tour. Members of Grandparents Raising Grandchildren will be invited to a special program on October 26 where students will implement their designs.

GMOA Tours and Reflections
Each student will sign up and complete at least two GMOA tours this fall. Within a week of each tour, students will post a reflection on eLC New that describes the tour from his or her perspective. Students may work as partners for these tours. Due November 21.

Final Project: Design a tour
Students will write an 8-page tour plan with a complete bibliography outlining a tour you have designed using the permanent collection or special exhibition (Cercle et Carré and the International Spirit of Abstraction, The Crossroads of Memory: Carroll Cloar and the American South, Exuberance of Meaning: The Art Patronage of Catherine the Great (1762–1796)) at the Georgia Museum of Art. This tour should address a specific theme or idea, target an age group or a specific audience (for example, UGA English classes or pre-school children), and incorporate techniques designed to engage visitors. Students will present their tours in the galleries. A rubric and additional information will be provided. Due at the beginning of class on November 21.

Required Readings:
Readings will be selected from a variety of sources and reflect current trends in museum education. The required text is Teaching in the art museum: Interpretation as experience by Rika Burnham and Elliott Kai-Kee (Los Angeles: J. Paul Getty Trust, 2011). Additional required readings are available through Bel-Jean Copy Center, 163 E. Broad Street in downtown Athens or provided in class or via eLC New.

Attendance and Participation: Attendance is expected throughout the semester. Except in extreme circumstances, missing more than 3 classes will adversely affect your grade. It is your responsibility to complete all assignments if you are absent, meet deadlines of assignments and work, and to find out from a classmate if you have missed any additional assignments or handouts.

Evaluation and Grading: Grading is based on the philosophy that excellence requires consistent involvement resulting in performance that meets and exceeds basic expectations. Assignments and class participation will be graded and weighted according to the following: class attendance and participation (20%), 10-minute dialogue (10%), tours and reflections (20%), Grandparents Raising Grandchildren program (20%), final project: design-a-tour (30%).

REGISTRARS

Personnel

The assistant registrar position that has been vacant since January 2010 was filled with temporary funding during FY14; Allison Nicks joined the department as assistant registrar for exhibitions. Tricia Miller, head registrar, continues to work with the museum’s director to seek temporary funding for Nicks and work toward establishing a permanent position. Jessica Walker also continues in a temporary position as database manager, with her primary duties being the implementation of the new TMS collections database system. Walker’s position is funded into FY15 with temporary money and Miller continues to work with the director to extend funding for this position and work toward establishing a permanent position.

Interns

The registrars department hosted two interns during FY 14: Laura Conte and Kelsey Jordan. Miller trained Conte in cataloguing procedures, and she worked on the backlog of cataloguing of acquisitions from the year 2012. Conte catalogued approximately 75 works on paper from the permanent collection. Kelsey Jordan worked as a summer intern in the department. During the summer she continued her work cataloguing works on paper from the Pierre Daura collection, which she had begun in FY 13. She completed approximately 50 works in addition to the 200 she had completed in FY13.

Collections Management

The department coordinates ongoing collections management tasks such as accessioning new acquisitions; updating and organizing artist, object, and exhibition information; assessing collections storage and updating storage facilities and techniques; assessing conservation needs and obtaining treatment for loaned works and works in the permanent collection; acquiring technical and other equipment needed for proper handling, storage, and tracking of the collection; managing the collections database; conducting a daily walk-through of the permanent collection galleries; working with visitors interested in viewing the museum’s collections; responding to inquiries and correspondence from students, professors, museum professionals, and the general public regarding collections and installations; tracking of nonaccessioned objects on extended loan; and updating policies and internal forms.

Phase II and Storage

Unpacking the collection and placing the approximately 10,000 objects in storage was delayed due to unforeseen requirements by the fire marshal before the reopening of the museum in January 2011. The registrars made significant progress on unpacking the collection in FY14 by seizing an opportunity to move the packed collection of framed objects into empty galleries for several weeks, thereby allowing access to the racks for framed storage and space for unpacking. In 3 1/2 weeks, the registrars unpacked and installed on the racks more than 700 framed objects. This work greatly relieved the space constraints in storage and now allows much greater access to works of art for all collections staff. Work continues on a few remaining packed boxes of framed works and also the unpacking and storage of sculpture and other three-dimensional objects in their storage room. Work also continues on updating location information for all of the objects.

Acquisitions

During FY14, the department accessioned 482 new objects into the collection (the list appears later in this report): 12 three-dimensional objects (sculpture, Asian or African objects, or folk art), 38 paintings, 161 decorative arts objects, and 271 works on paper (including photographs). Tricia Miller and Christy Sinksen executed preliminary cataloguing for new accessions, a process that includes correspondence with donors, dealers, and appraisers; condition reporting; applying accession numbers; assigning permanent locations; tracking the cataloguing process on a shared Excel spreadsheet; compiling curatorial files and typing curatorial sheets; data entry in the collections database; and working with curatorial staff to obtain complete cataloguing information. Miller has been working on new procedures and workflow for the processing of new acquisitions in conjunction with the new TMS database, including writing procedural manuals and style guides for the entry of new acquisition data.

During FY14, Miller worked with the director to evaluate the need for and the options for offsite storage for either collections equipment or works of art. She continues to discuss this issue with the director.

Deaccessioning

In FY14, the museum received approval from the university’s provost to deaccession the following three paintings by Bernard Smol:

La Forêt Enchantée (The Enchanted Forest), n.d.
Encaustic on canvas
34 1/2 x 50 3/4 inches
Georgia Museum of Art, University of Georgia; Museum Patrons Fund purchase, 1959
GMOA 1959.683

Les Pleureuses (The Mourners), n.d.
Encaustic on canvas
31 1/2 x 39 inches
Georgia Museum of Art, University of Georgia; Museum Patrons Fund purchase, 1959
GMOA 1959.684

Le Village Inondé (The Inundated Village), n.d.
Encaustic on canvas
34 1/2 x 50 1/2 inches
Georgia Museum of Art, University of Georgia; Museum Patrons Fund purchase, 1959
GMOA 1959.686

The department is currently preparing the works and collecting information for the sale of the paintings through public auction with Brunk Auctions in Asheville, North Carolina.

However, three of these paintings were requested for campus loans by members of the president’s administration. Therefore, deaccessioning will be delayed until the paintings are returned from campus loan.

Several other objects are under consideration for deaccessioning, including a large nineteenth-century rococo-style mirror in poor condition and a European painting that is a copy after Nattier.

Collections Database

During FY14, Jessica Walker continued data entry into the new collections management system, tagging the records with pertinent information to aid in searching for objects when the database is more complete. At the time of this report, she is poised to convert and upload around 13,000 object records from the previous database into the new database system. Walker also implemented the use of an importer tool to batch upload records from a spreadsheet, which immensely improved the speed at which she has been able to upload data. Once she completes the current batch upload there will be between 17,000 and 18,000 object and constituent (artist, donor, vendor, etc.) records in the system. She also continues to configure the database to customize it for the museum’s use.

With the assistance of Josh Walker, the museum continues to employ the Information Technology Outreach Services division (ITOS) of the Carl Vinson Institute of Government at UGA for hosting and support services for the TMS database.

Miller worked with Gallery Systems representatives on the design and function of eMuseum, the online interface for allowing public access to information about the collection from the TMS database. She continues to work on the design and hopes to have a test site ready for review soon after Walker completes the conversion of the 13,000 records.
Extended Loans

The department currently manages 3,509 extended loans, including 1,772 objects owned by the University of Georgia Foundation. Of the works owned by the Foundation, 1,147 are works belonging to the estate of Lamar Dodd; 62 new extended loans were added this fiscal year and 59 of those new loans remain current at the end of the fiscal year (3 were donated to the museum). Tricia Miller and Christy Sinksen processed incoming extended loans.

Currently, the Georgia Museum of Art houses 101 works of art from the Jason Schoen Collection as an extended loan, 13 of which are installed in the permanent collection galleries. In addition, the museum is storing the 154 works on paper from the Schoen collection that made up the exhibition The American Scene on Paper: Prints and Drawings from the Schoen Collection. Miller continues to work with Schoen to manage his collection while it resides at the museum. During FY14, two of Schoen’s objects were loaned out or remained on loan to the following exhibitions:

Exhibition: Madonnas of the Prairie: Depictions of Women in the American West
Venues: Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, Canyon, Texas
April 12–August 30, 2014
National Cowboy and Western Heritage Museum, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma
February–May 2015

Object(s):
- James Turnbull
  Family of Black Sharecroppers, 1939
  Gouache on board
- Peppino Mangravite
  Tomorrow’s Bread, 1939
  Oil on canvas

Art on Campus

Sinksen maintains the Art on Campus database as a useful tool for compiling works of art owned and displayed by other University of Georgia departments and for responding to inquiries from the public regarding works in the University of Georgia’s campus collections. To date, 105 departments have reported 2,203 objects.

The museum no longer lends works of art from its own collection to campus departments or units except for the Provost’s and President’s Offices. A number of “grandfathered” campus loans have remained at certain units and are being recalled. Prior to the campus loan recall currently underway, the Georgia Museum of Art had 77 permanent collection works on loan to campus departments. The number of campus loans currently remaining is 49. This number includes 14 works from the Estate of Lamar Dodd, which prescribed that the works be placed in campus buildings, and these works were among those exempted from the present recall.

Sinksen is responsible for assisting and advising university departments that have inquiries regarding care for the works of art

Shannon and Peter Candler Collections Study Room

Sarina Rousso accommodated six classes from the Lamar Dodd School of Art in the collections study room, pulling objects requested by professors, coordinating meeting times, and supervising the room while the classes were visiting.

Rousso also organized an event for the Athens Metal Arts Guild that took place in the collections study room on April 22, 2014. Twenty guild members viewed 31 metal works from the museum’s permanent collection. Prior to viewing the items, the group joined Dale Couch, curator of decorative arts, on a tour of silver items displayed in the permanent collection galleries.

Together with the museum’s education department, Rousso arranged an event for the Georgia Museum of Natural History on May 8, 2014. In preparation for the event, she organized a preliminary viewing for GMNH’s selection of 20 objects to be displayed in collections study. On the day of the event, three groups of 15 GMNH members took turns viewing the objects from the Sea Grant Collection in the room, followed by a tour of the permanent collection and a reception.
they hold. She also maintains a waiting list of departments that have requested the receipt of a gift, loan, or transfer of works of art to their department or unit from a donor, lender, or fellow department. There are presently 32 departments on this list.

Property Control Inventory

Sinksen serves as the museum’s liaison with the university’s Office of Property Control, which she updates by sending monthly lists of the museum’s new acquisitions, receiving in return Property Control inventory numbers assigned to new acquisitions, which she subsequently enters into the museum’s collections database and adds to the curatorial files. She also completes selected inventories of the museum’s collection items as directed by Property Control.

Photography and Rights to Reproduction Requests

Rousso coordinates requests for reproduction of works in the museum’s collection by responding to emails and phone calls from institutions, both nonprofit organizations and commercial publishers, seeking rental privileges and rights for the reproduction of images in the museum’s permanent collection. This year, Rousso handled 15 photography and rights to reproduction inquiries and catalogue raisonné requests, six of which generated $300 in income. She received nine completed projects and publications containing reproductions of eight works from the permanent collection, details on which appear in this report.

While working with these photography requests and inquiries, Rousso has kept abreast of current laws and issues related to copyright and added information to the museum’s list of artists for which the museum does not own copyright.

During FY14, Rousso coordinated five photography sessions with professional photographer Michael McKelvey, which included a total of 144 works of art. Of the objects photographed, 111 are from the permanent collection and 33 were extended loans. Preparation for these photography sessions included reserving the collections study room on the museum’s calendar. Rousso removed and replaced each work of art for the photography sessions, as well as invoiced each department at the museum accordingly once photography was complete. She received and processed the digital images by adding them to the image drive.

Rousso also continued to coordinate installation photography of exhibitions with graduate photography student Brittainy Lauback. These duties included scheduling appointments for photography to occur in the galleries, providing updated charts pertaining to current exhibitions, and, upon delivery via Dropbox, transferring the photographs to the shared drive for curatorial access.

Conservation

In FY14, conservation work was completed on 18 objects from the permanent collection. At the close of FY14, seven objects were in the process of being conserved. Miller, Sinksen, and Nicks coordinated conservation activities, which include assisting with the deliveries and pickups of conserved works and updating the conservation lists and curatorial files for each object conserved or assessed.

Exhibitions Management

The department coordinated the opening or closing of 25 temporary exhibitions in FY14.
Seven temporary exhibitions were organized by other institutions, organizations, or individuals, and 18 exhibitions were organized by in-house staff or guest curators. Exhibitions are listed elsewhere in this report. Two exhibitions that opened in FY13 closed in FY14. With these 25 exhibitions, the museum hosted a total of 1,295 loaned objects from 84 lenders in FY14.

The following works were rotated on the two-story lobby wall during FY14 (in order of appearance):
Coordination of exhibitions includes correspondence with lenders, reviewing and negotiating contracts and loan agreements, reviewing or submitting facilities reports, working with insurance issues, incoming and outgoing shipping arrangements, courier arrangements, incoming and outgoing condition reports, maintaining exhibition files, and often assistance with installation. Allison Nicks was hired in FY14 as a temporary registrar for exhibitions to relieve the particularly heavy exhibition load during the fall and winter of the fiscal year. She remains as a temporary employee, assisting with exhibition management.

Traveling Exhibitions and Outgoing Individual Object Loans

Miller, Sinksen, and Nicks coordinated traveling exhibitions and Sinksen coordinated outgoing individual object loans during FY14. As the outgoing loan coordinator for the museum, much of Sinksen’s work is concerned with the management of loans of individual objects and full exhibitions to other institutions. As an expression of the Georgia Museum of Art’s role as the state museum of art in Georgia, a priority is placed on serving in-state venues, which benefit from a discounted exhibition rental fee. In FY14, the department coordinated three outgoing exhibition loans and 39 outgoing object loans, bringing in a total of $14,750 in fees.

Please refer to elsewhere in this report for a full report on both types of outgoing loans. A brief survey of statistics from these reports follows:

Outgoing Individual Object Loans

- Total works loaned/to be loaned: 53; 30*
- Total number of venues: 27; 24
- Total fees: $5,200; $6,625

Outgoing Exhibition Loans

- Total exhibitions/venues: 6; 7*
- Total works: 271; 279
- Total fees: $14,750; $9,000
- Total attendance: 19,404; 8,231

* This year’s figure; last year’s figure

Upcoming Temporary Exhibitions

The registrars department has performed the duties associated with 11 upcoming in-house and incoming exhibitions. Duties include preliminary correspondence, reviewing and negotiating contracts or loan agreements, submitting a facilities report, resolving insurance issues, making incoming and outgoing shipping arrangements, creating incoming and outgoing condition reports, maintaining exhibition files, and updating curatorial files for exhibited works in the museum’s collection.

The upcoming exhibitions are:

- XL
- An Archaeologist’s Eye: The Parthenon Drawings of Katherine A. Schwab
- Boxers and Backbeats: Tomata du Plenty and the West Coast Punk Scene
- The ... of E6
• Emilio Pucci in America
• Odilon Redon
• Not Ready to Make Nice: Guerilla Girls in the Art World & Beyond
• Louise Blair Daura: A Virginian in Paris
• Pierre Daura: Picturing Attachments
• Piero Lerda
• El Taller de Gráfica Popular: Vida y Arte

Permanent Collection Exhibitions

Sinksen, Rousso, and Nicks continue to manage works on display in the permanent collection galleries by conducting daily walk-throughs of the spaces and working with the curators and preparators to track object changes in these galleries. Miller also worked with preparators and curators on some object changes in the galleries and the lobby.

Other Duties

All registrars continued to fulfill requests from students, professors, or the general public to study works in the museum’s collection or for assistance finding conservation, appraisal, or fine arts shipping resources. The registrars also assist the director in corresponding with patrons and colleagues, providing specialized research and reports, and other duties as needed.

By special request, Miller served on the hiring committee for the one-year temporary position of museum registrar for the Georgia Capitol Museum collection now housed at the Special Collections Library at UGA.

Rousso continues to update curatorial files, copy information for the curatorial files, and organize the exhibition file folders.

Nicks and assisted Miller with special projects such as preparing the paintings by Bernard Smol and compiling information for their deaccession, miscellaneous research, and copying and condition reporting.

Walker assisted with the unpacking and reinstallation of framed objects in storage in addition to her work on the database.
